

Interstate Agent for Bekins Van Lines, Inc.

Here's why interior designers have furnishings shipped to Ridgewood Moving Services....

Because it takes a lot of muscles to crack open a crate.

And inspect it.

And store it - that is until you're ready for delivery at your convenience when other things have arrived

Because it is rare to find a designer with their own warehouse, trucks and experienced delivery team – we offer a service to help alleviate the common issues and stresses involved with manufacturer deliveries.

- Keeping a clients' orders out of your own work space. Designers know that it sometimes takes weeks between an order's delivery and the client's final installation, and the last thing you need is several extra pieces of furniture taking up space in your office or home.
- Storing items for a showroom you're about to set up or have just taken down. Again, it will be difficult to do business with these items around your work space.
- Providing a safe and secure place for your items. You won't have to worry about nicks and scratches on your things if they are stored properly.
- The simple convenience of knowing you have a place to put your items for work if your space ever gets too cluttered!
